Norma Tarazi

the kid in Islam bargains a unprecedented and wealthy panoramic advisor to rearing a contented Child in Islam kinfolk in concord and in wisdom-and above all, Islamically. Is there a distinction among Muslim and non-Muslim baby rearing? certainly there is, and past the actual delineations of a Muslim's practice, it's the distinction among groping one's approach with a sputtering candle and strolling with a bit of luck forward on a brightly lit day alongside a well-marked path. this can be what Norma Tarazi illustrates in her full of life and sober dialogue infused by way of the dual rules of kindness and customary sense. Here is not any summary discussion; the author's transparent and simple voice examines the whole spectrum of kid rearing with always-practical recommendation and real-life, concrete techniques and strategies for challenge solving. The solutions and the strategies are Islamic, that is, thoroughly common and productive.
